

Location Drawing - Luc-John Raubenheimer

Email - l.lo0520211@arts.ac.uk

The above three are the narrative task, while the bottom eleven are the sketches I got done during the trip to Waterloo. Larger versions of each picture can be found in the link below that leads to MyBlog. The narrative task shows a tourist/commuting boat going through Waterloo Bridge and towards the Hungerford Bridges. I thought this rotation was very informative in terms of finding meaning and a narrative within sketches and drawings that you otherwise might normally look over, which, is a big part of animation and story-telling, drawn or computer generated. I don't normally carry around a sketch book nor do much drawing in that respect either, but this task might have changed my perspective on doing so, seeing as it was such a good exercise on both my drawing skills and again, my story-telling skills.

Link to this task -

<https://rlucjohnssite.myblog.arts.ac.uk/2021/10/19/sketches-for-tuesday/>

Link to MyBlog home page -

<https://rlucjohnssite.myblog.arts.ac.uk/>